Biographies

Formed a few weeks ago (September 2003), the Lloyd Carr-Harris String Quartet is composed of students that have received scholarships from the Llyod Carr-Harris funds for the continuation of their studies at McGill University. Coached by Professor André Roy, its members share a love and passion for string quartet that they wish to develop to the highest level of professionalism. Today's concert is their debut concert.

Emmanuel Vukovich, violinist

Born in Calgary, Alberta, Emmanuel Vukovich is currently pursuing a Bachelor of Music degree in the classes of Denise Lupien and André Roy. Former student of Dorothy Delay at The Juilliard School of Music, Emmanuel is Co-Artistic Director of "Symphony in the Barn Festival" in Durham, Ontario, where he has also served as an apprentice at Glencolton Farms. National Winner of the Canadian Music Competition, Emmanuel has performed recitals at the New York Holocaust Society in honor of actor Christopher Reeve and at the Museum of Natural History in London, England.

Aya Ito, violinist

Native of Calgary, Alberta, Aya Ito is currently pursuing a Bachelor of Music degree in the class of Denise Lupien. Former student of Ani Kafavian, Aya is the 1998 winner of the Calgary Concerto Competition and First prize winner of the Alberta Kiwanis Festival. National Winner of the Canadian Music Competition as a member of the Mosaïque String Quartet with whom she toured China, Aya has appeared as soloist in Mozart's Violin Concerto No.5 with the Calgary Civic Symphony.

Frédéric Lambert, violist

Born in Joliette, Québec, Frédéric Lambert is in his final year of a Bachelor of Music in the class of André Roy. Co-Principal of the McGill Symphony Orchestra for the last 2 years, Frédéric is a Fellowship recipient of the Orford Arts Centre where he appeared as soloist in J.S Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No.6. Winner of the CBC Fellowship "Prix Étoile" as member of the Sonora String Quartet, Frédéric is also a member of the Contemporary Ensemble "Synapse" and founding member of the Druzkovka Quartet for whom he wrote several pieces.

Hannah Addario-Berry, cellist

Born in Victoria, British Columbia, Hannah Addario-Berry in her final year of Bachelor of Music in the class of Elizabeth Dolin. Former student of Antonio Lysy, Hannah has been principal cello of the McGill Symphony Orchestra and of the National Youth Orchestra. Fellowship recipient of British Columbia Arts Festival since 1997, Hannah has appeared as soloist with the Sooke Philharmonic Orchestra in Elgar's Cello Concerto. Co-Artistic Director of "A Tribute to Bach" honoring the 250th anniversary of the death of J.S Bach in Victoria, B.C., Hannah is aspiring to bring classical music to a larger audience.
